Does God Accept Every Kind of Worship?

GOD created man with a spiritual need—a need to worship. It is not something that evolved. It was a part of man from the beginning.

Sadly, however, mankind has developed many different ways of worship, and for the most part, these have not produced a happy, united human family. Instead, bloody wars are still being fought in the name of religion. This raises the important question: Does it matter how a person worships God?

Questionable Worship in Ancient Times

The ancient nations who inhabited the Middle East provide a historical case that helps us to answer that question. Many worshiped a god called Baal. They also worshiped female companions of Baal, such as Asherah. The worship of Asherah involved the use of a sacred pole believed to be a sexual symbol. Archaeologists working in that region have dug up numerous images of nude women. These images, states The Encyclopedia of Religion, “feature a goddess with emphasized genitals, holding up her breasts,” and “probably represent . . . Asherah.” One thing is certain, Baal worship was often very immoral.

It is not surprising, therefore, that Baal worship included sex orgies. (Numbers 25: 1-3) Shechem, a Canaanite, raped the young virgin Dinah. In spite of this, he was viewed as the most honorable man in his family. (Genesis 34:1, 2, 19) Incest, homosexuality, and bestiality were common. (Leviticus 18:6, 22-24, 27) The very word “sodomy,” a practice of homosexuals, comes from the name of a city that once existed in that part of the world. (Genesis 19:4, 5, 28) Baal worship also involved bloodshed. Why, Baal worshipers would throw their children alive into flaming fires as a sacrifice to their gods! (Jeremiah 19:5) All these practices were related to religious teachings. How so?

“The brutality, lust and abandon of Canaanite mythology,” explains Dr. Merrill Unger in his book Archaeology and the Old Testament, “is far worse than elsewhere in the Near East at the time. And the astounding characteristic of Canaanite deities, that they had no moral character whatever, must have brought out the worst traits in their devotees and entailed many of the most demoralizing practices of the time, such as sacred prostitution, [and] child sacrifice.”

Did God accept the worship of the Canaanites? Of course not. He taught the Israelites how to worship him in a pure way. Regarding the practices mentioned above, he warned: “Do not make yourselves unclean by any of these things, because by all these things the nations whom I am sending out from before you have made themselves unclean. Consequently the land is unclean, and I shall bring punishment for its error upon it, and the land will vomit its inhabitants out.”—Leviticus 18:24, 25.

Pure Worship Becomes Contaminated

Many Israelites did not accept God’s view of pure worship. Instead, they allowed Baal

worship to continue in their land. Soon the Israelites were seduced into trying to mix the worship of Jehovah with that of Baal. Did God accept this mixed kind of worship? Consider what happened during the reign of King Manasseh. He set up altars to Baal, burned his own son as a sacrifice, and practiced magic. "Further, he put the carved image of the sacred pole ['ashe-rah' in Hebrew] that he had made in the house of which Jehovah had said . . . : 'In this house . . . I shall put my name to time indefinite.'" —2 Kings 21:3-7.

Manasseh's subjects followed the example of their king. In fact, he "kept seducing them to do what was bad more than the nations whom Jehovah had annihilated from before the sons of Israel." (2 Kings 21:9) Instead of heeding the repeated warnings from God's prophets, Manasseh committed murder to the extent of filling Jerusalem with innocent blood. Though Manasseh eventually reformed, his son and successor, King Amon, revived Baal worship.—2 Kings 21:16, 19, 20.

In time, male prostitutes began to operate in the temple. How did God view this expression of Baal worship? Through Moses, he had warned: "You must not bring the hire of a harlot or the price of a dog [likely a pederast] into the house of Jehovah your God for any vow, because they are something detestable to Jehovah your God, even both of them."—Deuteronomy 23:17, 18, footnote.

Manasseh's grandson, King Josiah, cleansed the temple of immoral Baal worship. (2 Kings 23:6, 7) But things had gone too far. Not too long after King Josiah's death, idol worship was again taking place in Jehovah's temple. (Ezekiel 8:3, 5-17) So Jehovah caused the king of Babylon to destroy Jerusalem and its temple. This sad fact of history is proof that some forms of worship are not acceptable to God. What about our day?

How Does God View Christendom's Worship?

"NOT everyone saying to me, 'Lord, Lord,' will enter into the kingdom of the heavens," said Jesus Christ, "but the one doing the will of my Father who is in the heavens will. Many will say to me in that day, 'Lord, Lord, did we not . . . perform many powerful works in your name?' And yet then I will confess to them: I never knew you! Get away from me, you workers of lawlessness."—Matthew 7:21-23.

Through his sacred Word, the Holy Bible, God has made clear what his will is. Are Christendom's churches doing God's will? Or are they what Jesus called "workers of lawlessness"?

Bloodshed

On the night before his Master's death, Peter almost started an armed conflict with the band of soldiers sent to arrest Jesus.

IDOLATRY

Baal worship involved the use of idols. The Israelites tried to mix the worship of Jehovah with that of Baal. They even brought idols into Jehovah's temple.

God's view of idol worship was made clear when he brought destruction upon Jerusalem and its temple.

Many of Christendom's churches are filled with idols, be they in the form of a cross, icons, or statues of Mary. Moreover, many churchgoers are taught to bow, kneel, or make the sign of the cross before these images. In contrast, true Christians are commanded to "flee from idolatry." (1 Corinthians 10:14) They do not try to worship God with the aid of material objects.—John 4:24.

(John 18:3, 10) But Jesus restored calm and warned Peter: "All those who take the sword will perish by the sword." (Matthew 26:52) This clear warning is repeated at Revelation 13:10. Have the churches of Christendom heeded it? Or do they share responsibility for ongoing wars in various parts of the earth?

During World War II, hundreds of thousands of Serbs and Croats were murdered in the name of religion. "In Croatia," reports The New Encyclopædia Britannica, "the indigenous fascist regime set about a policy of 'racial purification' that went beyond even Nazi practices. . . . It was declared that one-third of the Serbian population would be deported, one-third converted to Roman Catholicism, and one-third liquidated. . . . The partial collaboration of the Catholic clergy in these practices compromised church-state relations seriously after the war." Countless numbers of people were forced to convert to Catholicism or die; thousands of others were not even given a choice. Whole villages—men, women, and children—were forced into their Orthodox churches and killed. What about the opposing Communist armies? Did they also have religious support?

"Some of the priests participated in the war on the side of the revolutionary forces," reports the book History of Yugoslavia. "The Partisan armies even came to include priests from both Serbian Orthodox and Roman Catholic churches," states the book Yugoslavia and the New Communism. Religious differences continue to fan the flames of war in the Balkans.

And what about Rwanda? The general secretary of the Catholic Institute for International Relations, Ian Linden, made the following admission in the journal The Month: "Investigations by African Rights in London provide one or two examples of local Catholic, Anglican and Baptist Church leaders being implicated by omission or commission in militia killings. . . . There is absolutely no doubt that significant numbers of prominent Christians in parishes were involved in killings." Sadly, fighting between so-called Christians continues to plague central Africa.

Fornication and Adultery

According to God's Word, there is only one honorable place for sex, and that is within the bond of marriage. "Let marriage be honorable among all," states the Bible, "and the marriage bed be without defilement, for God will judge fornicators and adulterers." (Hebrews 13:4) Are church leaders upholding this teaching of God?

In 1989 the Anglican Church in Australia released an official document on sexuality that suggested that sex before marriage is not wrong if a couple are totally committed to each other. More recently, the leader of the Anglican Church in Scotland stated: "The Church should not condemn affairs as sinful and wrong. The Church must accept adultery is caused by our genetics."

In South Africa a number of clergymen have spoken out in favor of homosexuality. For example, in 1990 the South African magazine You quoted a prominent Anglican minister as saying: "Scripture is not binding for ever. . . . I believe there will be changes in the church's attitude and policy towards gay people."—Contrast Romans 1:26, 27.

According to the 1994 Britannica Book of the Year, sexuality has become a dominant issue in American churches, especially matters such as "the ordination of announced gays and lesbians to the ministry, religious understanding of homosexual rights, blessing of 'gay marriage,' and legitimization or condemnation of lifestyles associated with homosexuality." Most of the major church denominations tolerate clergymen who campaign for greater sexual freedom. According to the 1995 Britannica Book of the Year, 55 Episcopalian bishops signed a declaration "affirming the acceptability of homosexual ordination and practice."

Some clergymen argue in favor of homosexuality, claiming that Jesus never spoke against it. But is that really so? Jesus Christ declared that God's Word is truth. (John 17:17) That means that he endorsed God's view of homosexuality as described at Leviticus 18:22, which reads: "You must not lie down with a male the same as you lie down with a woman. It is a detestable thing." Moreover, Jesus listed fornication and adultery among the "wicked things [that] issue forth from within and defile a man." (Mark 7:21-23) The Greek word for fornication is a broader term than that for adultery. It describes all forms of sexual relations outside lawful marriage, including homosexuality. (Jude 7) Jesus Christ also warned his followers not to tolerate any professed Christian teacher who minimizes the seriousness of fornication.—Revelation 1:1; 2:14, 20.

When religious leaders campaign for the ordination of homosexuals and Lesbians, what effect does this have on members of their churches, especially the young people? Is it not an inducement to experiment with sex outside marriage? In contrast, God's Word urges Christians to "flee from fornication." (1 Corinthians 6:18) If a fellow believer falls into such sin, loving help is given with a view to restoring the person to God's favor. (James 5:16, 19, 20) What if this help is rejected? The Bible states that unless such ones repent, they 'will not inherit God's kingdom.'—1 Corinthians 6:9, 10.

"Forbidding to Marry"

Because of the "prevalence of fornication," the Bible says that "it is better to marry than to be inflamed with passion." (1 Corinthians 7:2, 9) In spite of this wise advice, many among the clergy are required to remain celibate, that is, unmarried. "The vow of celibacy is not broken," explains Nino Lo Bello in his book The Vatican Papers, "if a priest, monk or nun engages in sexual relations. . . . Forgiveness for sexual relations can be obtained by making an honest declaration in the confessional, whereas the marriage of any priest would simply not be recognized by the Church." Has this teaching produced good or bad fruitage?—Matthew 7:15-19.

"THE CHURCH LEADER SHOULD BE WITHOUT FAULT"

THIS expression is from Titus 1:7, according to Today's English Version. The King James Version reads: "A bishop must be blameless." The word "bishop" comes from a Greek word meaning "overseer." Thus men who are appointed to take the lead in the true Christian congregation must live up to basic Bible standards. If they do not, they must be removed from their position of oversight, since they are no longer "examples to the flock." (1 Peter 5:2, 3) How seriously is this requirement taken by Christendom's churches?

In his book I Care About Your Marriage, Dr. Everett Worthington refers to a survey of 100 pastors in the state of Virginia, U.S.A. Over 40 percent admitted to having engaged in some form of passion-arousing conduct with someone who was not their marriage partner. A large number of them had committed adultery.

"Over the past decade," observes Christianity Today, "the church has been repeatedly staggered by revelations of immoral conduct by some of its most respected leaders." The article "Why Adulterous Pastors Should Not Be Restored" challenged the common practice in Christendom of quickly restoring church leaders to their former positions after they have been "convicted of sexual sin."

No doubt, many priests live morally chaste lives, but a large number do not. According to the 1992 Britannica Book of the Year, "the Roman Catholic Church was reported to have paid out $300 million to settle cases of clergy sexual abuse." Later, the 1994 edition said: "The death of a number of clergy from AIDS brought visibility to the presence of gay priests and observations that there were an inordinate number of . . . gays drawn to the priesthood." No wonder the Bible states that "forbidding to marry" is a 'teaching of demons.' (1 Timothy 4:1-3) "In the view of some historians," writes Peter de Rosa in his book Vicars of Christ, "[priestly celibacy] has probably done more harm to morals than any other institution in the West, including prostitution. . . . [It] has been more often than not a stain on the name of Christianity. . . . Enforced celibacy has always led to hypocrisy in the ranks of the clergy. . . . A priest can fall a thousand times but he is forbidden by canon law to marry once."

Considering God's view of Baal worship, it is not difficult to discern how he must view the divided churches of Christendom. The last book of the Bible combines all forms of false worship under the name "Babylon the Great, the mother of the harlots and of the disgusting things of the earth." "In her," the Bible adds, "was found the blood of prophets and of holy ones and of all those who have been slaughtered on the earth." —Revelation 17:5; 18:24.

Hence, God urges all who want to be his true worshipers: "Get out of her, my people, if you do not want to share with her in her sins, and if you do not want to receive part of her plagues. . . . In one day her plagues will come, death and mourning and famine, and she will be completely burned with fire, because Jehovah God, who judged her, is strong." —Revelation 18:4, 8.

The question now arises: After getting out of false religion, where should a person go? What form of worship is acceptable to God?

“A HOUSE OF PRAYER FOR ALL THE NATIONS”

“Is it not written, ‘My house will be called a house of prayer for all the nations’?”—MARK 11:17.

WHEN Adam and Eve were created, they enjoyed a close relationship with their heavenly Father. Jehovah God communicated with them and outlined his marvelous purpose for the human race. Surely, they were often moved to burst forth in praise of Jehovah for his magnificent works of creation. If Adam and Eve needed guidance as they contemplated their role as the future father and mother of the human family, they could approach God from any place in their Paradise home. They did not need the services of a priest in a temple.—Genesis 1:28.

<sup>2</sup> The situation changed when a rebellious angel seduced Eve into thinking that her lot in life would improve if she rejected Jehovah's sovereignty, stating that she would “be like God.” Accordingly, Eve ate fruit from the tree that God had placed off limits. Then Satan used Eve to tempt her husband. Tragically, Adam listened to his sinful wife, showing that he valued his relationship with her more than his relationship with God. (Genesis 3:4-7) In effect, Adam and Eve chose Satan as their god.—Compare 2 Corinthians 4:4.

not only their precious relationship with God but also the prospect of living forever in an earthly paradise. (Genesis 2:16, 17) Their sinful bodies eventually deteriorated until they died. Their offspring inherited this sinful condition. “Thus,” the Bible explains, “death spread to all men.”—Romans 5:12.

<sup>4</sup> Something was needed to reconcile sinful mankind with their holy Creator. When sentencing Adam and Eve, God gave hope to their future offspring by promising a “seed” that would save mankind from the effects of Satan's rebellion. (Genesis 3:15) Later, God revealed that the Seed of blessing would come through Abraham. (Genesis 22:18) With this loving purpose in mind, God selected Abraham's descendants, the Israelites, to become his chosen nation.

<sup>5</sup> In 1513 B.C.E., the Israelites entered into a covenant relationship with God and agreed to obey his laws. That Law covenant should be of great interest to all who want to worship God today because it pointed to the promised Seed. Paul said it contained “a shadow of the good things to come.” (Hebrews 10:1) When Paul made this statement, he was discussing the service of Israel's priests at a movable tabernacle, or tent of worship. It was called "the temple of Jehovah" or "the house of Jehovah." (1 Samuel 1:9, 24) By examining the sacred service performed at Jehovah's earthly house, we can come to appreciate more fully the merciful arrangement whereby sinful humans today can become reconciled with God.

The Most Holy

<sup>6</sup> "The Most High does not dwell in houses made with hands," states the Bible. (Acts 7:48) However, God's presence in his earthly house was represented by a cloud in the innermost compartment called the Most Holy. (Leviticus 16:2) Evidently, this cloud shone brightly, providing the Most Holy with light. It was positioned above a sacred chest called "the ark of the testimony," which contained stone tablets engraved with some of the commands that God gave Israel. On the cover of the Ark were two golden cherubs with outstretched wings, which pictured spirit creatures of high rank in God's heavenly organization. The miraculous cloud of light was situated above the cover and between the cherubs. (Exodus 25:22) This was pictorial of Almighty God enthroned upon a heavenly chariot supported by living cherubs. (1 Chronicles 28:18) It explains why King Hezekiah prayed: "O Jehovah of armies, the God of Israel, sitting upon the cherubs."—Isaiah 37:16.

The Holy

<sup>7</sup> The second compartment of the tabernacle was called the Holy. Inside this section, to the left of the entrance stood a beautiful seven-branched lampstand, and on the right was a table of showbread. Straight ahead stood an altar from which the aroma of burning incense ascended. It was situated in front of a curtain that separated the Holy from the Most Holy.

<sup>8</sup> Every morning and every evening, a priest had to enter the tabernacle and burn incense on the altar of incense. (Exodus 30:7, 8) In the morning, while the incense burned, the seven lamps that rested upon the golden lampstand had to be replenished with oil. In the evening the lamps were lit to provide light for the Holy. Every Sabbath a priest had to place 12 fresh loaves on the table of showbread.—Leviticus 24:4-8.

The Courtyard

<sup>9</sup> The tabernacle also had a courtyard, surrounded by a fence of tent cloths. In this courtyard was a large basin where the priests washed their hands and feet before entering the Holy. They also had to wash before offering sacrifices on the altar that was situated in the courtyard. (Exodus 30:18-21) This requirement of cleanliness is a strong reminder to God's servants today that they must strive for physical, moral, mental, and spiritual purity if they want their worship to be acceptable to God. (2 Corinthians 7:1) In time the wood for the fire on the altar and the water for the basin were supplied by non-Israelite temple slaves.—Joshua 9:27.

<sup>10</sup> Every morning and every evening, a young sacrificial ram was burned on the altar along with a grain and drink offering. (Exodus 29:38-41) Other sacrifices were made on special days. Sometimes a sacrifice had to be made because of a specific personal sin. (Leviticus 5:5, 6) At other times an Israelite could offer a voluntary communion sacrifice in which portions were eaten by the priests and by the one who made the offering. This denoted that human sinners could have peace with God, enjoying a meal with him, as it were. Even an alien resident could become a worshiper of Jehovah and be privileged to present voluntary offerings at His house. But in order to show due honor to Jehovah, the priests could only accept offerings of the best quality. The flour of grain offerings had to be finely ground, and animals for sacrifices had to be without any defect.—Leviticus 2:1; 22:18-20; Malachi 1:6-8.

<sup>11</sup> The blood of these sacrifices was brought to the altar. This served as a daily reminder to the nation that they were sinners in need of a redeemer whose shed blood could permanently atone for their sins and save them from death. (Romans 7:24, 25; Galatians 3:24; compare Hebrews 10:3.) This sacred use of blood also reminded the Israelites that blood represents life and that life belongs to God. Any other use of blood by humans has always been forbidden by God.—Genesis 9:4; Leviticus 17:10-12; Acts 15:28, 29.

The Day of Atonement

<sup>12</sup> Once a year on what was called the Day of Atonement, the whole nation of Israel, including alien residents who worshiped Jehovah, had to cease from all work and fast. (Leviticus 16:29, 30) On this important day, the nation was cleansed from sin in an illustrative way so as to enjoy peaceful relations with God for another year. Let us imagine the scene and consider some of the highlights.

<sup>13</sup> The high priest is in the courtyard of the tabernacle. Having washed himself at the basin of water, he slaughters a bull for sacrifice. The bull's blood is poured into a bowl; it will be used in a special way to atone for the sins of the priestly tribe of Levi. (Leviticus 16:4, 6, 11) But before going any further with the sacrifice, there is something the high priest must do. He takes perfumed incense (likely putting it in a ladle) and burning coals from the altar in a fire holder. He now enters the Holy and walks toward the curtain of the Most Holy. He slowly passes around the curtain and stands before the ark of the covenant. Next, out of the view of any other human, he pours incense onto the fiery coals, and the Most Holy is filled with a sweet-smelling cloud.

—Leviticus 16:12, 13.

<sup>14</sup> Now God is willing to show mercy and be propitiated in an illustrative way. For this reason the cover of the Ark was called the "mercy seat" or "propitiatory cover." (Hebrews 9:5, footnote) The high priest goes out of the Holy of Holies, takes the bull's blood, and enters the Most Holy again. As commanded in the Law, he dips his finger into the blood and spatters it seven times before the cover of the Ark. (Leviticus 16:14) Next he goes back to the courtyard and slaughters a goat, which is a sin offering "for the people." He brings some of the goat's blood into the Most Holy and does with it the same as he did with the bull's blood. (Leviticus 16:15) Other important services also took place on the Day of Atonement. For example, the high priest had to lay his hands on the head of a second goat and confess over it "the errors of the sons of Israel." This live goat was then led into the wilderness to carry away the nation's sins in a figurative sense. In this manner atonement was made each year "for the priests and for all the people of the congregation."—Leviticus 16:16, 21, 22, 33.

<sup>15</sup> For the first 486 years of Israel's history as God's covenant people, the movable tabernacle served them as the place to worship their God, Jehovah. Then, Solomon of Israel was given the privilege of building a permanent structure. Though this temple was to be bigger and more elaborate, the divinely provided plan followed the same pattern as that of the tabernacle. Like the tabernacle, it was illustrative of a greater, more effective arrangement for worship that Jehovah would "put up, and not man."—Hebrews 8:2, 5; 9:9, 11.

The First Temple and the Second

<sup>16</sup> When dedicating that glorious temple, Solomon included this inspired request: "To the foreigner who is no part of your people Israel and who actually comes from a distant land by reason of your great name . . . , and they actually come and pray toward this house, then may you yourself listen from the heavens, from your established place of dwelling, and you must do according to all for which the foreigner calls to you; in order that all the peoples of the earth may know your name and may fear you the same as your people Israel do, and may know that your name has been called upon this house that I have built." (2 Chronicles 6:32, 33) In an unmistakable way, God showed his acceptance of Solomon's dedication prayer. A shaft of fire fell from heaven and consumed the animal sacrifices upon the altar, and Jehovah's glory filled the temple.—2 Chronicles 7:1-3.

<sup>17</sup> Sadly, the Israelites lost their wholesome fear of Jehovah. In time, they profaned his great name through acts of bloodshed, idolatry, adultery, incest, and through the mistreatment of orphans, widows, and foreigners. (Ezekiel 22:2, 3, 7, 11, 12, 26, 29) Thus, in the year 607 B.C.E., God executed judgment by bringing up the Babylonian armies to destroy the temple. The surviving Israelites were taken captive to Babylon.

<sup>18</sup> After 70 years a repentant Jewish remnant returned to Jerusalem and were granted the privilege of rebuilding Jehovah's temple. Interestingly, there was a shortage of priests and Levites to serve in this second temple. As a result, Nethinim, who descended from non-Israelite temple slaves, were given greater privileges as ministers of God's house. However, they never became the equals of the priests and the Levites.—Ezra 7:24; 8:17, 20.

<sup>19</sup> At first it seemed that the second temple would be nothing compared to the former one. (Haggai 2:3) But Jehovah promised: "I will rock all the nations, and the desirable things of all the nations must come in; and I will fill this house with glory . . . Greater will the glory of this latter house become than that of the former." (Haggai 2:7, 9) True to these words, the second temple did attain a greater glory. It lasted 164 years longer, and many more worshipers from many more lands flocked into its courtyards. (Compare Acts 2:5-11.)

18. At the second temple, what privileges opened up to some non-Israelite men who wholeheartedly supported the worship of Jehovah?

19. What promise did God make respecting the second temple, and how did these words come true?

A renovating of the second temple started in the days of King Herod, and its courtyards were enlarged. Elevated on a massive stone platform and surrounded by beautiful colonnades, it rivaled in grandeur the original temple built by Solomon. It included a large, outer courtyard for people of the nations who wanted to worship Jehovah. A stone barrier separated this Court of the Gentiles from the inner courtyards reserved for Israelites only.

<sup>20</sup> This second temple enjoyed the great distinction of having the Son of God, Jesus Christ, teach within its courtyards. But as with the first temple, the Jews in general did not have a proper view of their privilege of being custodians of God's house. Why, they even allowed merchants to do business in the courtyard of the Gentiles. Moreover, people were allowed to use the temple as a shortcut when carrying items around Jerusalem. Four days before his death, Jesus cleansed the temple of such secular practices, while he kept on saying: "Is it not written, 'My house will be called a house of prayer for all the nations'? But you have made it a cave of robbers."—Mark 11:15-17.

God Abandons His Earthly House Forever

<sup>21</sup> Because of Jesus' courageous action in championing God's pure worship, the Jewish religious leaders were determined to kill him. (Mark 11:18) Knowing that he would soon be murdered, Jesus said to the Jewish religious leaders: "Your house is abandoned to you." (Matthew 23:37, 38) He thereby indicated that soon God would no longer accept the form of worship practiced at the typical temple in Jerusalem. It would no longer be "a house of prayer for all the nations." When his disciples pointed out to Jesus the magnificent temple buildings, he said: "Do you not behold all these things?... By no means will a stone be left here upon a stone and not be thrown down."—Matthew 24:1, 2.

<sup>22</sup> Jesus' prophecy was fulfilled 37 years later in the year 70 C.E., when Roman armies destroyed Jerusalem and its temple. That provided dramatic proof that God had indeed abandoned his typical house. Jesus never foretold the rebuilding of another temple in Jerusalem. Regarding that earthly city, the apostle Paul wrote to Hebrew Christians: "We do not have here a city that continues, but we are earnestly seeking the one to come." (Hebrews 13:14) Early Christians looked forward to becoming part of "heavenly Jerusalem"—the citylike Kingdom of God. (Hebrews 12:22) Thus, the true worship of Jehovah is no longer centered at a physical temple on earth. In our next article, we will consider the superior arrangement that God has set up for all who desire to worship him "with spirit and truth."—John 4:21, 24.

JEHOVAH'S GREAT SPIRITUAL TEMPLE

"We have such a high priest as this, . . . a public servant of the holy place and of the true tent, which Jehovah put up, and not man."—HEBREWS 8:1, 2.

JEHOVAH GOD, out of his great love for mankind, provided a sacrifice to take away the sins of the world. (John 1:29; 3:16) It required transferring the life of his firstborn Son from heaven to the womb of a Jewish virgin named Mary. Jehovah's angel clearly explained to Mary that the child she would conceive would "be called holy, God's Son." (Luke 1:34, 35) Joseph, who was engaged to Mary, was told about the miraculous nature of Jesus' conception and learned that this one would "save his people from their sins."—Matthew 1:20, 21.

<sup>2</sup> As Jesus grew up, he must have grasped some of these facts about his miraculous birth. He knew that his heavenly Father had a lifesaving work for him to do on earth. So, as a full-grown man of about 30 years of age, Jesus came to God's prophet John to get baptized in the Jordan River.—Mark 1:9; Luke 3:23.

<sup>3</sup> Jesus was praying at the time of his baptism. (Luke 3:21) Evidently, from this point on in his life, he fulfilled the words of Psalm 40:6-8, as later indicated by the apostle Paul: "Sacrifice and offering you did not want, but you prepared a body for me." (Hebrews 10:5) Thus Jesus showed his awareness that God "did not want" animal sacrifices to continue being offered at Jerusalem's temple. Instead, he realized that God had prepared a perfect human body for him, Jesus, to offer as a sacrifice. This would remove any further need of animal sacrifices. Showing his heartfelt desire to submit to God's will, Jesus continued praying: "Look! I am come (in the roll of the book it is written about me) to do your will, O God." (Hebrews 10:7) What a magnificent example of courage and unselfish devotion Jesus set on that day for all who would later become his disciples!—Mark 8:34.

<sup>4</sup> Did God show approval of Jesus' baptismal prayer? Let one of Jesus' chosen apostles give us the answer: "After being baptized Jesus immediately came up from the water; and, look! the heavens were opened up, and he saw descending like a dove God's spirit coming upon him. Look! Also, there was a voice from the heavens that said: 'This is my Son, the beloved, whom I have approved.'”—Matthew 3:16, 17; Luke 3:21, 22.

<sup>5</sup> God's acceptance of the presentation of Jesus' body for sacrifice meant that, in a spiritual sense, an altar greater than that in Jerusalem's temple had come to the fore. The literal altar where animals were presented for sacrifice foreshadowed that spiritual altar, which was in effect God's "will" or arrangement for accepting Jesus' human life as a sacrifice. (Hebrews 10:10) That is why the apostle Paul could write to fellow Christians: "We have an altar from which those who do sacred service at the tent [or, temple] have no authority to eat." (Hebrews 13:10) In other words, true Christians benefit from a superior sin-atoning sacrifice, which most Jewish priests rejected.

<sup>6</sup> The anointing of Jesus with holy spirit meant that God had now brought forth his entire spiritual temple arrangement, with Jesus serving as High Priest. (Acts 10:38; Hebrews 5:5) The disciple Luke was inspired to pinpoint the year of this momentous event as being "the fifteenth year of the reign of Tiberius Caesar." (Luke 3: 1-3) That corresponds to the year 29 C.E.—exactly 69 weeks of years, or 483 years, from the time that King Artaxerxes had given the command for Jerusalem's walls to be rebuilt. (Nehemiah 2:1, 5-8) According to prophecy, "Messiah the Leader" would appear in that marked year. (Daniel 9:25) Many Jews were evidently aware of this. Luke reports that "the people were in expectation" about the appearance of the Messiah, or Christ, titles that come from Hebrew and Greek words that have the same meaning, "anointed one."—Luke 3:15.

<sup>7</sup> At the time of Jesus' baptism, God's heavenly abode was anointed, or set apart, as "the Holy of Holies" in the great spiritual temple arrangement. (Daniel 9:24) "The true tent [or, temple], which Jehovah put up, and not man" had come into operation. (Hebrews 8:2) Also, through his baptism with water and holy spirit, the man Jesus Christ was born again as a spiritual Son of God. (Compare John 3:3.) This meant that God would in due course recall his Son to heavenly life, where he would serve at his Father's right hand as King and High Priest "according to the manner of Melchizedek forever."—Hebrews 6:20; Psalm 110: 1, 4.

The Heavenly Most Holy

<sup>8</sup> On the day of Jesus' baptism, God's heavenly throne had taken on new features. The identification of a perfect human sacrifice to atone for the sins of the world emphasized God's holiness in contrast with man's sinfulness. God's mercy was also highlighted in that he now showed his willingness to be appeased, or propitiated. Thus God's throne in heaven had become like the innermost compartment of the temple, where the high priest entered once a year with animal blood to atone for sin in an illustrative way.

<sup>9</sup> The curtain that separated the Holy from the Most Holy pictured Jesus' fleshly body. (Hebrews 10:19, 20) It was the barrier that kept Jesus from entering into his Father's presence while he was a man on earth. (1 Corinthians 15:50) At the time of Jesus' death, "the curtain of the sanctuary was rent in two, from top to bottom." (Matthew 27:51) This dramatically indicated that the barrier preventing Jesus' entry into heaven had now been removed. Three days later, Jehovah God performed an outstanding miracle. He raised Jesus from the dead, not as a mortal human of flesh and blood, but as a glorious spirit creature "continuing alive forever." (Hebrews 7:24) Forty days later, Jesus ascended to heaven and entered the real "Holy of Holies," "to appear before the person of God for us."—Hebrews 9:24.

<sup>10</sup> Did God accept the value of Jesus' shed blood as atonement for the sins of the world? Indeed he did. Proof of this came exactly 50 days after Jesus' resurrection, on the festival day of Pentecost. God's holy spirit was poured out upon 120 disciples of Jesus gathered together in Jerusalem. (Acts 2:1, 4, 33) Like their High Priest, Jesus Christ, they were now anointed to serve as "a holy priesthood, to offer up spiritual sacrifices" under God's great spiritual temple arrangement. (1 Peter 2:5) Furthermore, these anointed ones constituted a new nation, God's "holy nation" of spiritual Israel. Henceforth, all prophecies of good things about Israel, such as the "new covenant" promise recorded at Jeremiah 31:31, would apply to the anointed Christian congregation, the real "Israel of God."—1 Peter 2:9; Galatians 6:16.

Other Features of God's Spiritual Temple

late to things on the earth. (Hebrews 9:24) In the temple in Jerusalem, there was an inner priestly courtyard containing an altar for sacrifice and a large basin of water, which the priests used to cleanse themselves before performing sacred service. What do these things picture in God's spiritual temple arrangement?

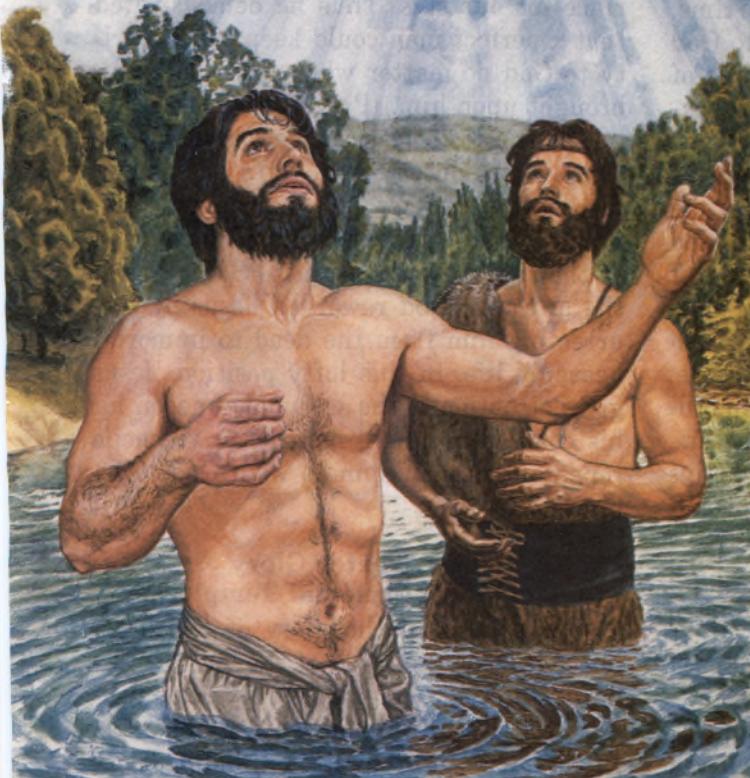

<sup>12</sup> In the case of Jesus Christ, the inner priestly courtyard pictured his sinless condition as a perfect human Son of God. Through exercising faith in Jesus' sacrifice, anointed followers of Christ are credited with righteousness. Thus, God can justly deal with them as if they were sinless. (Romans 5:1; 8:1, 33) Hence, this courtyard also pictures the imputed righteous human condition that individual members of the holy priesthood enjoy before God. At the same time, anointed Christians are still imperfect and subject to committing sin. The water basin in the courtyard pictures God's Word, which the High Priest uses to cleanse the holy priesthood progressively. By submitting to this cleansing process, they have attained a splendid appearance that honors God and draws outsiders to his pure worship.—Ephesians 5:25, 26; compare Malachi 3:1-3.

The Holy

<sup>13</sup> The first compartment of the temple pictures a condition superior to that of the courtyard. In the case of the perfect human Jesus Christ, it pictures his rebirth as a spiritual Son of God destined to return to heavenly life. After being declared righteous on the basis of their faith in Christ's shed blood, these anointed followers also experience this special operation of God's spirit. (Romans 8:14-17) Through "water

[that is, their baptism] and spirit," they are "born again" as spiritual sons of God. As such, they have the hope of being resurrected to heavenly life as spirit sons of God, provided they remain faithful till death.

—John 3:5, 7; Revelation 2:10.

<sup>14</sup> Priests who served inside the Holy of the earthly temple were unseen by worshipers on the outside. Likewise, anointed Christians experience a spiritual condition that is not shared or fully understood by the majority of worshipers of God, whose hope is to live forever on a paradise earth. The golden lampstand of the tabernacle pictures the enlightened condition of anointed Christians. The operation of God's holy spirit, like the oil in the lamps, sheds light on the Bible. The understanding that Christians gain as a result, they do not keep to themselves. Rather, they obey Jesus, who said: "You are the light of the world. . . . Let your light shine before men, that they may see your fine works and give glory to your Father who is in the heavens."

—Matthew 5:14, 16.

<sup>15</sup> To remain in this enlightened condition, anointed Christians must regularly feed upon what is pictured by the bread on the table of showbread. Their primary source of spiritual food is the Word of God, which they endeavor to read and meditate upon daily. Jesus also promised to provide them with "food at the proper time" through his "faithful and discreet slave." (Matthew 24:45) This "slave" is the entire body of anointed Christians on earth at any particular time. Christ has used this anointed body to publish information on the fulfillment of Bible prophecies and to give timely direction on the application of Bible principles in modern daily life. Hence, anointed Christians appreciatively feed on all such spiritual provisions. But the sustenance of their spiritual lives depends on more than taking knowledge of God into their minds and hearts. Jesus said: "My food is for me to do the will of him that sent me and to finish his work." (John 4:34) Likewise, anointed Christians experience satisfaction by daily applying themselves to doing God's revealed will.

<sup>16</sup> In the morning and in the evening, a priest offered incense to God upon the altar of incense in the Holy. At the same time, nonpriestly worshipers would pray to God while standing in the outer courtyards of his temple. (Luke 1:8-10) "The incense," explains the Bible, "means the prayers of the holy ones." (Revelation 5:8) "May my prayer be prepared as incense before you," wrote the psalmist David. (Psalm 141:2) Anointed Christians also treasure their privilege of approaching Jehovah in prayer through Jesus Christ. Fervent prayers that flow from the heart are like sweet-smelling incense. Anointed Christians also praise God in other ways, using their lips to teach others. Their endurance in the face of hardships and their integrity under trial are especially pleasing to God.—1 Peter 2:20, 21.

incense on a golden censer containing fiery coals. This had to be done before he brought in the blood of sin offerings. In fulfillment of this prophetic picture, the man Jesus kept absolute integrity to Jehovah God before offering his life as the one lasting sacrifice for our sins. Thus he demonstrated that a perfect man could keep his integrity to God no matter what pressure Satan brought upon him. (Proverbs 27:11) When put to the test, Jesus made use of prayer "with strong outcries and tears, and he was favorably heard for his godly fear." (Hebrews 5:7) In this way he glorified Jehovah as the righteous and rightful Sovereign of the universe. God rewarded Jesus by resurrecting him from the dead to immortal heavenly life. In this lofty position, Jesus gives attention to the secondary reason for his coming to earth, namely, to reconcile repentant human sinners with God.—Hebrews 4:14-16.

The Greater Glory of God's Spiritual Temple

<sup>18</sup> "Greater will the glory of this later house become than that of the former," Jehovah foretold. (Haggai 2:9) By resurrecting Jesus as an immortal King and High Priest, Jehovah brought outstanding glory to his spiritual temple. Jesus is now in a position to bring "everlasting salvation to all those obeying him." (Hebrews 5:9) The first to show such obedience were the 120 disciples who received holy spirit at Pentecost in 33 C.E. The book of Revelation foretold that these spiritual sons of Israel would finally number 144,000. (Revelation 7:4) Upon death, many of them had to lie unconscious in the common grave of mankind, awaiting the time of Jesus' presence in kingly power. The prophetic chronology contained at Daniel 4:10-17, 20-27 points to 1914 as the time for Jesus to begin ruling in the midst of his enemies. (Psalm 110:2) For decades in advance, anointed Christians keenly awaited that year. The first world war and accompanying woes on mankind furnished proof that Jesus was indeed enthroned as King in 1914. (Matthew 24:3, 7, 8) Shortly thereafter, the time having arrived for “judgment to start with the house of God,” Jesus would fulfill the promise to his anointed disciples who had fallen asleep in death: “I am coming again and will receive you home to myself.”—1 Peter 4:17; John 14:3.

<sup>19</sup> The 144,000 members of the holy priesthood have not all been finally sealed and gathered to their heavenly home. A remnant of them still live on earth in the spiritual condition pictured by the Holy, separated from God’s holy presence by the “curtain,” or barrier, of their fleshly bodies. As these ones die in faithfulness, they are instantaneously resurrected as immortal spirit creatures to join those of the 144,000 already in heaven.—1 Corinthians 15:51-53.

<sup>20</sup> With so many priests serving along with the great High Priest in heaven, God’s spiritual temple has received added glory. Meanwhile, the remaining ones of the holy priesthood are performing a valuable work on earth. Through their preaching, God is ‘rocking all the nations’ with expressions of his judgment, as foretold at Haggai 2:7. At the same time, millions of worshipers described as “the desirable things of all the nations” are flocking into the earthly court-yards of Jehovah’s temple. How do these ones fit into God’s arrangement for worship, and what future glory can we expect for his great spiritual temple? These questions will be examined in the next article.

THE TRIUMPH OF TRUE WORSHIP DRAWS NEAR

“Jehovah must become king over all the earth.”—ZECHARIAH 14:9.

DURING the first world war, anointed Christians suffered many hardships and imprisonments at the hands of the warring nations. Their sacrifices of praise to Jehovah were severely restricted, and they fell into a spiritually captive state. All of this was foretold at Zechariah 14:2, which describes an international attack on Jerusalem. The city of this prophecy is “heavenly Jerusalem,” God’s heavenly Kingdom and the location of “the throne of God and of the Lamb." (Hebrews 12:22, 28; 13:14; Revelation 22:3) God's anointed ones on earth represented that city. The faithful ones among them survived the attack, refusing to allow themselves to be exiled "from the city."<sup>4</sup>

<sup>2</sup> In 1919 faithful anointed ones were set free from their captive condition, and they immediately made use of the period of peace that followed the war. As ambassadors of heavenly Jerusalem, they seized the grand opportunity to preach the good news of God's Kingdom and to assist in gathering the final members of the 144,000. (Matthew 24:14; 2 Corinthians 5:20) In 1931 they adopted the fitting Scriptural name Jehovah's Witnesses.—Isaiah 43:10, 12.

<sup>3</sup> Since then, God's anointed Witnesses have never looked back. Not even Hitler with his Nazi war machine could silence them. In spite of worldwide persecution, their work has borne fruit in all the earth. Particularly from the year 1935, they have been joined by the international "great crowd," foretold in the book of Revelation. These too are dedicated, baptized Christians and have "washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb," Jesus Christ. (Revelation 7:9, 14) However, they are not anointed ones, with the hope of heavenly life. Their hope is to inherit what Adam and Eve lost, namely, perfect human life on a paradise earth. (Psalm 37:29; Matthew 25:34) Today, the great crowd numbers more than five million souls. The true worship of Jehovah is triumphing, but its final triumph is yet to come.

Foreigners in God's Spiritual Temple

<sup>4</sup> As foretold, the great crowd "are worshiping [God] day and night in his temple." (Revelation 7:15, footnote) Since they are not spiritual, priestly Israelites, John likely saw them standing in the temple in the outer courtyard of the Gentiles. (1 Peter 2:5) How glorious Jehovah's spiritual temple has become, its precincts being filled with this large throng who, along with the remnant of spiritual Israel, are praising him!

<sup>5</sup> The great crowd do not serve God in the condition pictured by the inner priestly courtyard. They are not declared righteous for the purpose of being God's adopted, spiritual sons. (Romans 8:1, 15) Nevertheless, by exercising faith in Jesus' ransom, they have a clean standing before Jehovah. They are declared righteous with the purpose of being his friends. (Compare James 2:21, 23.) They too are privileged to present acceptable sacrifices upon God's spiritual altar. Thus, in this large crowd, the prophecy of Isaiah 56:6, 7 is undergoing a glorious fulfillment: "The foreigners that have joined themselves to Jehovah to minister to him and to love the name of Jehovah, . . . I will also bring them to my holy mountain and make them rejoice inside my house of prayer. Their whole burnt offerings and their sacrifices will be for acceptance upon my altar. For my own house will be called even a house of prayer for all the peoples."

<sup>6</sup> Among the sacrifices that these foreigners offer are "the fruit of lips [like finely prepared grain offerings] which make public declaration to [God's] name" and "the doing of good and the sharing of things with others." (Hebrews 13:15, 16) The large container of water that the priests had to use to wash themselves is also an important reminder to these foreigners. They too must submit to spiritual and moral cleansing as God's Word is made progressively clearer to them.

The Holy and Its Furnishings

<sup>7</sup> Do the Holy and its furnishings have any meaning for this great crowd of foreigners? Well, they will never be in the condition pictured by the Holy. They are not born again as spiritual sons of God with heavenly citizenship. Does this make them feel envious or covetous? No. Rather, they rejoice in their privilege of supporting the remnant of the 144,000, and they show deep appreciation for God's purpose in adopting these spiritual sons, who will share with Christ in uplifting mankind to perfection. Also, the great crowd of foreigners cherish God's great undeserved kindness in granting them an earthly hope of everlasting life in Paradise. Some of these foreigners, like the Nethinim of old, have been given privileges of oversight in assisting the holy priesthood.* (Isaiah 61:5) From among these Jesus appoints "princes in all the earth."—Psalm 45:16.

<sup>8</sup> While they will never enter the anti-typical Holy, the great crowd of foreigners learn valuable lessons from its furnishings. Just as the lampstand needed a constant supply of oil, so the foreigners need holy spirit to help them grasp progressive truths from God's Word, channeled through "the faithful and discreet slave." (Matthew 24:45-47) Further, God's spirit helps them to respond to this invitation: "The spirit and the bride [the anointed remnant] keep on saying: 'Come!' And let anyone hearing say: 'Come!' And let anyone thirsting come; let anyone that wishes take life's water free." (Revelation 22:17) Thus, the lampstand is a reminder to the great crowd of their obligation to shine as Christians and to avoid anything in attitude, thought, word, or deed that would grieve God's holy spirit.—Ephesians 4:30.

<sup>9</sup> The table of showbread reminds the great crowd that to remain spiritually healthy, they must regularly partake of spiritual food from the Bible and from publications of "the faithful and discreet slave." (Matthew 4:4) The altar of incense reminds them of the importance of earnestly praying to Jehovah for help so as to keep their integrity. (Luke 21:36) Their prayers should include heartfelt expressions of praise and thanksgiving. (Psalm 106:1) The incense altar also reminds them of the need to praise God in other ways, such as through their wholehearted singing of Kingdom songs at Christian meetings and by their preparing well to make effective "public declaration for salvation."—Romans 10:10.

The Complete Triumph of True Worship

<sup>10</sup> Today "many peoples" out of all nations are streaming to Jehovah's house of worship. (Isaiah 2:2, 3) Confirming this, Revelation 15:4 states: "Who will not really fear you, Jehovah, and glorify your name, because you alone are loyal? For all the nations will come and worship before you, because your righteous decrees have been made manifest." Zechariah chapter 14 describes what follows. In the near future, the bad attitude of the majority of the people on earth will reach a climax as they gather for the last time to wage war against Jerusalem—the representatives on earth of the heavenly Jerusalem. Then Jehovah will act. As a Warrior-God, he "will certainly go forth and war against those nations" who dare to make this attack.—Zechariah 14:2, 3.

<sup>11</sup> "This is what will prove to be the scourge with which Jehovah will scourge all the peoples that will actually do military service against Jerusalem: There will be a rotting away of one's flesh, while one is standing upon one's feet; and one's very eyes will rot away in their sockets, and one's very tongue will rot away in one's mouth. And it must occur in that day that confusion from Jehovah will become widespread among them; and they will actually grab hold, each one of the hand of his companion, and his hand will actually come up against the hand of his companion."—Zechariah 14:12, 13.

<sup>12</sup> Whether this scourge is literal or figurative, we will have to wait and see. However, one thing is certain. While God's enemies are moving to make their global attack on Jehovah's servants, they will be stopped by awesome demonstrations of God's almighty power. Their mouths will be silenced. It will be as if their tongues of defiance had rotted away. Their united goal will become blurred to their vision, as if their eyes had rotted away. Their physical powers, which emboldened them to make the attack, will waste away. In confusion, they will turn upon one another with a great slaughter. Thus all the earthly enemies of God's worship will be wiped out. At last, all nations will have been forced to recognize Jehovah's universal sovereignty. The prophecy will be fulfilled: "Jehovah must become king over all the earth." (Zechariah 14:9) Thereafter, Satan and his demons will be bound as the Thousand Year Reign of Christ commences with great blessings in store for mankind. —Revelation 20:1, 2; 21:3, 4.

The Earthly Resurrection

<sup>13</sup> Zechariah's prophecy continues at chapter 14, verse 16: "It must occur that, as regards everyone who is left remaining out of all the nations that are coming against Jerusalem, they must also go up from year to year to bow down to the King, Jehovah of armies, and to celebrate the festival of the booths." According to the Bible, all people alive today who continue living to the end of this wicked system and who are judged to be enemies of true worship will undergo the "judicial punishment of everlasting destruction." (2 Thessalonians 1:7-9; see also Matthew 25:31-33, 46.) They will not have a resurrection. Likely, then, the ones "left remaining" include the members of the nations who died before God's final war and for whom there is a Bible-based hope of a resurrection. "The hour is coming," Jesus promised, "in which all those in the memorial tombs will hear his voice and come out, those who did good things to a resurrection of life, those who practiced vile things to a resurrection of judgment."—John 5:28, 29.

something in order for their resurrection to turn out to be one of life and not one of adverse judgment. They must come to the earthly courtyards of Jehovah's temple and bow down in dedication to God through Jesus Christ. Any resurrected ones who refuse to do this will suffer the same scourge that befalls the present-day nations. (Zechariah 14:18) Who knows how many resurrected ones will gladly join the great crowd in celebrating the antitypical Festival of Booths? Doubtless, there will be many, and Jehovah's great spiritual temple will become even more glorious as a result!

The Antitypical Festival of Booths

<sup>15</sup> Each year, ancient Israel was required to celebrate the Festival of Booths. It lasted for one week and came at the conclusion of the gathering in of their harvest. It was a joyful time of thanksgiving. For the duration of the week, they had to live in temporary shelters covered with the leaves of trees, especially palm branches. This festival reminded Israel of how God had saved their forefathers out of Egypt and how he cared for them as they dwelt in booths while moving about for 40 years in the wilderness until they reached the Promised Land. (Leviticus 23:39-43) During the festival, 70 bulls were sacrificed upon the temple altar. Evidently, this feature of the festival was prophetic of the perfect and complete life-saving work performed by Jesus Christ. The benefits of his ransom sacrifice will eventually flow to countless descendants of the 70 families of mankind that descended from Noah.—Genesis 10:1-29; Numbers 29:12-34; Matthew 20:28.

<sup>16</sup> Thus the ancient Festival of Booths pointed to the joyful ingathering of redeemed sinners into Jehovah's great spiritual temple. The antitype of this festival started at Pentecost in 33 C.E. with the commencement of the joyful ingathering of spiritual Israelites into the Christian congregation. (Acts 2:41, 46, 47) These anointed ones appreciated that they were "temporary residents" in Satan's world because their real "citizenship exists in the heavens." (1 Peter 2:11; Philippians 3:20)

Review Questions

- How was "Jerusalem" under attack during the first world war?—Zechariah 14:2.
- What has happened to God's people since 1919?
- Who today share in celebrating the antitypical Festival of Booths?
- How will true worship triumph completely?

The joyful festival was temporarily eclipsed by the apostasy that resulted in the formation of Christendom. (2 Thessalonians 2:1-3) However, the festival was resumed in 1919 with the joyful ingathering of the final members of the 144,000 spiritual Israelites, followed by that of the international great crowd of Revelation 7:9.

<sup>17</sup> The great crowd are depicted as having palm branches in their hands, which shows that they too are joyful celebrators of the antitypical Festival of Booths. As dedicated Christians, they joyfully share in the work of gathering more worshipers into Jehovah's temple. Furthermore, as sinners, they appreciate that they do not have permanent dwelling rights on earth. They, along with future resurrected ones, must keep exercising faith in Christ's ransom sacrifice until they reach human perfection at the end of the Thousand Year Reign of Christ.—Revelation 20:5.

<sup>18</sup> Then, God's worshipers on earth will stand before him in human perfection without the need of a heavenly priesthood. The time will have come when Jesus Christ "hands over the kingdom to his God and Father." (1 Corinthians 15:24) Satan will be let loose "for a little while" to test perfected humanity. Any unfaithful ones will be destroyed forever, along with Satan and his demons. Those who remain faithful will be granted everlasting life. They will become permanent dwellers in the earthly Paradise. Thus the antitypical Festival of Booths will have come to a glorious, successful conclusion. True worship will have triumphed to Jehovah's everlasting glory and mankind's eternal happiness.—Revelation 20:3, 7-10, 14, 15.

GOD'S WORD WORKS "MIRACLES"

AS TOLD BY THÉRÈSE HÉON

One day in 1965, I entered a business establishment and offered copies of the Watchtower and Awake! magazines to the merchants. As I turned to leave, I heard a bang. A bullet hit the floor near my feet. "That's the way to deal with Jehovah's Witnesses," one of the merchants taunted.

THAT experience frightened me—but not enough to make me give up the full-time ministry. The Bible truths that I had learned were too precious to allow anything to cause me to abandon my ministry. Let me explain why I say this.

After I was born in July 1918, my parents settled in Cap-de-la-Madeleine, a small village in Quebec, Canada, known as The Place of Miracles. Visitors flocked here to pay homage at the shrine of the Virgin Mary. Although the alleged miracles by Mary cannot be proved, God's Word has worked what is virtually miraculous in the lives of scores of people as the village has grown into a town of over 30,000 inhabitants.

When I was about 20 years old, my father saw my interest in religious matters and gave me his Bible. When I began to read it, I was shocked to learn from Exodus chapter 20 that image worship is plainly condemned. I immediately lost confidence in the teachings of the Catholic Church and stopped attending Mass. I did not want to worship statues. I can still hear Father saying, "Thérèse, aren't you going to church?" "No," I replied, "I'm reading the Bible."

Bible reading continued to be a part of my life even after I got married in September of 1938. Since my husband, Rosaire, often worked at night, I made it a habit to read the Bible when he was at work. I soon came to the conclusion that God must have a people, and I started to look for them.

My Search for God's People

Because of what I had learned in church, when I was young, I was afraid to go to sleep for fear of waking up in hell. To combat such fear, I used to tell myself that a God of love would not let something so horrible happen. Confidently, I kept reading the Bible, searching for truth. I was like the Ethiopian eunuch who read but did not understand.—Acts 8:26-39.

My brother André and his wife, who lived in an apartment on the floor below us, started to study the Bible with Jehovah's Witnesses in about 1957. I told my sister-in-law to warn me by knocking on the ceiling when the Witnesses came to preach in the building. That way I would know not to answer. One day she failed to warn me.

That day I opened the door and met Kay Munday, a pioneer, as full-time ministers of Jehovah's Witnesses are called. She talked to me about God's name, explaining that God has a personal name, Jehovah. After she left, I checked my Bible to confirm that what she had said was indeed supported by Bible texts. My research made me very happy.—Exodus 6:3, Douay Version, footnote; Matthew 6:9, 10; John 17:6.

When Kay called again, we discussed the Catholic doctrine of the Trinity, which claims that God is three persons in one God. Later I carefully examined my own Bible to satisfy myself that it does not teach the Trinity. (Acts 17:11) My study confirmed that Jesus is not as great as God. He was created. He had a beginning, whereas Jehovah did not. (Psalm 90:1, 2; John 14:28; Colossians 1:15-17; Revelation 3:14) Satisfied with what I was learning, I was happy to continue the Bible discussions.

One day in 1958, during a November snowstorm, Kay invited me to attend a circuit assembly being held that very evening in a rented hall. I accepted the invitation and enjoyed the program. Afterward, in a conversation with a Witness who approached me, I asked, "Must a true Christian preach from house to house?"

"Yes," he said, "the good news must be declared, and the Bible reveals that calling on people at their homes is an important method of preaching."—Acts 20:20.

How delighted I was with his answer! It convinced me that I had found God's people. If he had said, "No, it is not necessary," I would have doubted that I had found the truth, for I knew what the Bible said about preaching from house to house. From that point on, I made rapid spiritual progress.

After that circuit assembly, I started to attend the meetings of Jehovah's Witnesses that were held in the neighboring town of Trois-Rivières. Kay and her partner, Florence Bowman, were the only Witnesses then living in Cap-de-la-Madeleine. One day I said, "I'll come with you to preach tomorrow." They were happy to have me accompany them.

Preaching in My Hometown

I thought that everyone would accept the Bible message, but I quickly learned that this was not the case. When Kay and Florence were assigned elsewhere, I was the only one in town preaching Bible truths from house to house. Undaunted, I continued to preach alone for about two years until my baptism on June 8, 1963. That very day I enrolled in what was then called the vacation pioneer service.

I continued as a vacation pioneer for one year. Then, Delvina Saint-Laurent promised that she would come to Cap-de-la-Madeleine and work with me once a week if I became a regular pioneer. So I filled out my pioneer application. Sadly, though, just two weeks before I was to begin the full-time ministry, Delvina died. What would I do? Well, I had filled out the application and did not want to turn back. So in October 1964, I began my career in the full-time ministry. For the next four years, I went from house to house alone.

The devout Catholics of Cap-de-la-Madeleine were often hostile. Some called the police in an attempt to prevent me from preaching. One day, as I mentioned at the outset, a merchant tried to intimidate me by shooting at my feet. Well, this caused quite a stir in town. The local television station called it a crusade against Jehovah's Witnesses. The whole incident resulted in a favorable witness. Incidentally, ten years later, a relative of the merchant who had shot at me became a Witness himself.

"Miracles" Worked by God's Word

Over the years, I have seen the wall of opposition to Bible truths gradually crumble in Cap-de-la-Madeleine. About 1968, other Witnesses moved here, and the local residents began to respond to Bible truths. By the early 1970's, there was, in effect, an explosion in the number of Bible studies. It reached a point when I had to ask other Witnesses to take over several of the Bible studies I was conducting so that I could continue to maintain some share in the house-to-house ministry.

One day a young woman accepted from me the Bible study aid The Truth That Leads to Eternal Life. Her companion at the time was a young man named André, a rough-and-tough looking criminal who joined in the conversation. A discussion with André aroused his interest, and a Bible study was started. Soon thereafter he began speaking to his friends about what he was learning.

At one point, I was studying the Bible with four gangsters, one of whom did not say very much but listened a lot. His name was Pierre. One morning at about two o'clock, my husband and I heard a knock on the door. Picture this scene: Four gangsters were standing there with questions for me. Fortunately, Rosaire never complained about such untimely visits.

Initially the four men attended the meetings. However, only André and Pierre persevered. They brought their lives into harmony with God's standards and were baptized. For over 20 years now, both men have faithfully served Jehovah. When they started studying, they were well-known for their criminal activity and were watched by the police. Sometimes the police came looking for them after one of our Bible studies or during a congregation meeting. I am happy that I preached to "all sorts of men," and thus saw firsthand how God's Word effects changes that seem truly miraculous. —1 Timothy 2:4.

If at the beginning of my ministry I had been told that there would be a Kingdom Hall in Cap-de-la-Madeleine and that it would be filled with Jehovah's people, I would not have believed it. To my delight the one small congregation in the neighboring city of Trois-Rivières has grown to six prospering congregations that meet in three Kingdom Halls, including the one in Cap-de-la-Madeleine.

I have personally had the joy of helping about 30 persons reach the point of dedication and baptism. Now, at 78 years of age, I can truly say that I am happy that I dedicated my life to Jehovah. I must acknowledge, however, that I have had bouts of discouragement. To counteract such periods successfully, I always open my Bible and read some passages that greatly refresh me. It is unthinkable for me to let one day go by without reading the Word of God. Especially encouraging is John 15:7, where it says: "If you remain in union with me and my sayings remain in you, ask whatever you wish and it will take place for you."

It is my hope to see Rosaire in the new world so near at hand. (2 Peter 3:13; Revelation 21:3, 4) Just before his death in 1975, he was progressing well toward baptism. For now, I am determined to persevere in the full-time ministry and continue rejoicing in Jehovah's work.

Who Deserves to Be Called RABBI?

AN UNSUSPECTING tourist had little hope of getting to the airport on time. Hundreds of police attempted to direct traffic while guarding the more than 300,000 mourners who packed the streets of Jerusalem. The Jerusalem Post called it "a funeral procession of the size generally reserved only for presidents, kings or totalitarian dictators." Who could have caused such an outpouring of devotion, paralyzing Israel's capital for hours? A respected rabbi. Why does the position of rabbi command such respect and devotion among Jews? When did the term "rabbi" first come into use? To whom does it rightly apply?

Was Moses a Rabbi?

The most respected name in Judaism is Moses, the mediator of Israel's Law covenant. Religious Jews call him "Moses 'our Rabbi.'" However, nowhere in the Bible is Moses referred to by the title "Rabbi." In fact, the term "rabbi" does not appear at all in the Hebrew Scriptures. How, then, did Jews begin to refer to Moses in this way?

According to the Hebrew Scriptures, the responsibility and authority of teaching and explaining the Law was given to the descendants of Aaron, the priests of the tribe of Levi. (Leviticus 10:8-11; Deuteronomy 24:8; Malachi 2:7) However, in the second century B.C.E., a quiet revolution began within Judaism, indelibly affecting Jewish thought from that point on.

Regarding this spiritual metamorphosis, Daniel Jeremy Silver writes in A History of Judaism: "At [that] time a class of nonpriestly scribes and scholars began to challenge the legitimacy of the priestly monopoly of Torah [Mosaic Law] interpretation. Everyone agreed that priests were necessary as Temple functionaries, but why should they have a final voice on Torahic matters?" Who were the instigators of this challenge to the authority of the priestly class? A new group within Judaism called the Pharisees. Silver continues: "The Pharisees based admissions to their academies on merit, not on birth [priestly descent], and they brought a new class of Jews into religious leadership."

By the first century C.E., the graduates of these Pharisaic academies came to be known as teachers, or masters, of Jewish law. As a sign of respect, other Jews began to refer to them as "my teacher," or "my master," in Hebrew, rabbi.

Nothing could give more legitimacy to this new title than to apply it to the one viewed as the greatest teacher in Jewish history, Moses. The effect would further diminish the emphasis on the priesthood while bolstering the image of the increasingly influential Pharisaic leadership. Thus, over 1,500 years after his death, Moses was retroactively designated "Rabbi."

Imitating the Master

While the expression "rabbi" ("my master") was sometimes used by the masses to refer to other teachers to whom they accorded respect, the term was usually applied to the prominent teachers among the Pharisees, "the sages." With the destruction of the temple in 70 C.E. effectively ending the authority of the priesthood, the Pharisaic rabbis became the uncontested leaders of Judaism. Their unrivaled position encouraged the development of a type of cult centering on the rabbinic sages.

Discussing this first century C.E. transitional period, Professor Dov Zlotnick comments: "Attendance upon the Sages,' became more important than the study of Torah." Jewish scholar Jacob Neusner further explains: "The 'disciple of the sages' is a student who has attached himself to a rabbi. He does so because he wants to learn 'Torah.' . . . Torah is not learned through the law, but through seeing the law embodied in the gestures and deeds of the living sages. They teach the law by what they do, not alone by what they say."

Talmudic scholar Adin Steinsaltz corroborates this, writing: "The sages themselves said, 'Random conversations, jests, or casual statements of sages should be studied.'" To what extent could this be applied? Steinsaltz notes: "An extreme example of this was the disciple who was reported to have concealed himself under the bed of his great teacher in order to discover how he behaved with his wife. When queried on his inquisitiveness, the young disciple replied: 'It is Torah and deserves to be studied,' an approach accepted by both rabbis and students as valid."

With the emphasis on the rabbi rather than Torah—learning Torah through the rabbi—Judaism from the first century C.E. forward became a rabbi-oriented religion. One drew close to God, not through the inspired written Word, but through a personal exemplar, a master, the rabbi. Thus, the emphasis naturally switched from inspired Scripture to the oral law and traditions taught by these rabbis. From this point on, Jewish literature, such as the Talmud, centers more on the discussions, anecdotes, and behavior of the rabbis than on the pronouncements of God.

Rabbis Through the Ages

Although wielding tremendous authority and influence, the early rabbis did not earn a living from their religious activity. The Encyclopaedia Judaica states: "The rabbi of the Talmud was . . . completely different from the present-day holder of the title. The talmudic rabbi was an interpreter and expounder of the Bible and the Oral Law, and almost invariably had an occupation whence he derived his livelihood. It was only in the Middle Ages that the rabbi became . . . the teacher, preacher, and spiritual head of the Jewish congregation or community."

When rabbis began to turn their position into a salaried occupation, some spoke out against it. Maimonides, the renowned 12th-century rabbi who earned his living as a physician, railed against such rabbis. "[They] fixed for themselves monetary demands from individuals and communities and caused people to think, in utter foolishness, that it is obligatory and proper to help [financially] sages and scholars and people studying Torah, thus their Torah is their trade. But all this is wrong. There is not a single word, either in the Torah or in the sayings of the sages, to lend credence to it." (Commentary on the Mishnah, Avot 4:5) But Maimonides' denunciation went unheeded by future generations of rabbis.

As Judaism entered the modern age, it divided into factions of reform, conservative, and orthodox belief. For many Jews religious belief and practice became secondary to other concerns. In turn, the position of the rabbi was undermined. The rabbi, for the most part, became an ordained head of a congregation, acting as a paid, professional teacher and counselor for members of his group. However, among the ultraorthodox Hasidic groups, the concept of the rabbi as master and exemplar evolved even further.

Notice the comments of Edward Hoffman in his book about the Hasidic Chabad-Lubavitch movement: "The early Hasidim also stressed that in every generation there exists a single Jewish leader, a zaddik [a righteous one], who is the 'Moses' of his time, one whose scholarship, and devotion to others is unequaled. Through his awesome piety, each group of Hasidim felt, their Rebbe [Yiddish for "rabbi"] could even influence the Almighty's decrees. Not only was he revered as an exemplar through his revelatory discourses, but his very quality of being ('how he ties his shoelaces,' as it was put) was seen to exalt humanity and impart subtle indications of the path to the divine."

"Do Not You Be Called Rabbi"

Jesus, the first-century Jew who founded Christianity, lived at the time when the Pharisaic concept of the rabbi was beginning to overtake Judaism. He was not a Pharisee, nor had he been trained in their academies, yet he too was called Rabbi.
—Mark 9:5; John 1:38; 3:2.

Denouncing the rabbinical trend in Judaism, Jesus said: "The scribes and the Pharisees have seated themselves in the seat of Moses. They like the most prominent place at evening meals and the front seats in the synagogues, and the greetings in the marketplaces and to be called Rabbi by men. But you, do not you be called Rabbi, for one is your teacher, whereas all you are brothers."
—Matthew 23:2, 6-8.

Jesus warned against the clergy-laity distinction that was developing within Judaism. He denounced giving such undue prominence to men. "One is your teacher," he boldly declared. Who was this One?

Moses, "whom Jehovah knew face to face" and who was called "our Rabbi" by the sages themselves, was an imperfect man. Even he made mistakes. (Deuteronomy 32:48-51; 34:10; Ecclesiastes 7:20) Rather than highlighting Moses as the ultimate example, Jehovah told him: "A prophet I shall raise up for them from the midst of their brothers, like you; and I shall indeed put my words in his mouth, and he will certainly speak to them all that I shall command him. And it must occur that the man who will not listen to my words that he will speak in my name,

Bible prophecies prove that these words have their fulfillment in Jesus, the Messiah.* Not only was Jesus "like" Moses; he was greater than Moses. (Hebrews 3:1-3) Scripture reveals that Jesus was born a perfect man, and unlike Moses he served God "without sin."—Hebrews 4:15.

Follow the Exemplar

The intense study of a rabbi's every action and word has not brought Jews closer to God. While an imperfect man might be an example of faithfulness, if we study and imitate his every action, we will imitate his mistakes and imperfections as well as his good points. We would be giving undue glory to the one created rather than to the Creator.—Romans 1:25.

* For more information on evidence that Jesus is the promised Messiah, see the brochure Will There Ever Be a World Without War?, pages 24-30, published by the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society of New York, Inc.

But Jehovah did provide an Exemplar for mankind. According to Scripture, Jesus had a prehuman existence. In fact, he is called "the image of the invisible God, the first-born of all creation." (Colossians 1:15) Having served in heaven for untold millenniums as God's "master worker," Jesus is in the best position to help us come to know Jehovah.—Proverbs 8:22-30; John 14:9, 10.

Therefore, Peter could write: "Christ suffered for you, leaving you a model for you to follow his steps closely." (1 Peter 2:21) The apostle Paul encouraged Christians to "look intently at the Chief Agent and Perfecter of our faith, Jesus." He also explained that "carefully concealed in him are all treasures of wisdom and of knowledge." (Hebrews 12:2; Colossians 2:3) No other man—not Moses nor any rabbinic sage—is worthy of such attention. If anyone should be closely imitated, it is Jesus. Servants of God have no need of a title such as rabbi, especially in view of its modern-day connotation, but if anyone deserved to be called Rabbi, it was Jesus.

ANNUAL MEETING OCTOBER 5, 1996

THE ANNUAL MEETING of the members of Watch Tower Bible and Tract Society of Pennsylvania will be held on October 5, 1996, at the Assembly Hall of Jehovah's Witnesses, 2932 Kennedy Boulevard, Jersey City, New Jersey. A preliminary meeting of the members only will convene at 9:15 a.m., followed by the general annual meeting at 10:00 a.m.

The members of the Corporation should inform the Secretary's Office now of any change in their mailing addresses during the past year so that the regular letters of notice and proxies can reach them during July.

The proxies, which will be sent to the members along with the notice of the annual meeting, are to be returned so as to reach the Office of the Secretary of the Society not later than August 1. Each member should complete and return his proxy promptly, stating whether he is going to be at the meeting personally or not. The information given on each proxy should be definite on this point, since it will be relied upon in determining who will be personally present.

It is expected that the entire session, including the formal business meeting and reports, will be concluded by 1:00 p.m. or shortly thereafter. There will be no afternoon session. Because of limited space, admission will be by ticket only. No arrangements will be made for tying in the annual meeting by telephone lines to other auditoriums.

FORMER JUDGE APOLOGIZES —AFTER 45 YEARS

IN A courtroom in Berlin, in August 1995, a former Supreme Court judge expressed to one of Jehovah's Witnesses his remorse for a wrong he had committed 45 years earlier.

In October 1950, the Supreme Court of the German Democratic Republic (GDR) declared nine of Jehovah's Witnesses guilty of antistate agitation and espionage. Two were sentenced to life imprisonment, and the other seven—including 22-year-old Lothar Hörnig, fourth defendant from the right in the photograph—were given long prison terms.

Forty years later, the GDR became part of the Federal Republic of Germany. Officials have since investigated some of the injustices committed in the former GDR and have tried to bring to justice those responsible. One such injustice was the Supreme Court trial of the Witnesses in 1950.

A. T., now 80, was one of the three judges who passed judgment when the nine Witnesses were brought to trial. Now charged with perverting justice, he appeared before the Regional Court in Berlin to explain his ruling.

In his statement to the court, the former judge admitted that he had voted for a guilty verdict 45 years earlier, though he had favored less severe sentences. But the case had made him think again. Why? Jehovah's Witnesses were persecuted by the Nazis during the second world war because they refused to support Hitler. After the war the Witnesses were again persecuted, this time by the Communist regime. This caused the judge to be "deeply distressed."

Lothar Hörnig told the court that he spent five and a half years in solitary confinement and was not released from Brandenburg prison until 1959. Upon hearing Hörnig's statement, the former judge broke down in tears. "I am very sorry," he sobbed. "Please forgive me." Hörnig accepted the apology.—Compare Luke 23:34.
